Often Good Friday occurs in April, but this year Good Friday is in March, March 30. I decided, therefore, to have the March readings reflect and express God's promise of Christ and salvation as well as the cross itself. The Old Testament promise of the coming salvation is called God's "covenant." So, all the Old Testament passages and some of the New Testament passages contain the word (and idea of) covenant. The rest of the New Testament passages contain the word and idea of the cross. God bless you in this season of Lent; remembering and preparing for the time we focus on Christ's death (and resurrection).
